Part A: Certification of Authorship

All persons designated as authors should qualify for authorship. Each author should have participated sufficiently in the work to take public responsibility for the content.

Authorship credit should be based on substantial contributions to

- (1) conception and design or analysis and interpretation of data, and
- (2) drafting the article or revising it critically for important intellectual content, and on
- (3) final approval of the version to be published.

Conditions 1, 2, and 3 must all be met. Participation solely in the acquisition of funding or the collection of data does not justify authorship. General supervision of the research group is also not sufficient. Any part of an article critical to its main conclusions must be the responsibility of at least one author.

Only those with key responsibility for the material in the article should be listed as authors; others contributing to the work should be recognized in an Acknowledgment.

As an author of this manuscript, I certify that I have

- 1. made a significant contribution to the conception and design of experimental studies or the analysis and interpretation of data.
- 2. participated in drafting the manuscript or reviewing and/or revising it for intellectual content.
- 3. approved the final version of the manuscript.

(All three are required)

I also certify that my role as author was not limited solely to

- (1) the acquisition of funding for the research.
- (2) my position as chair or director of a relevant department, division or research group.

Part B: Disclosure of Competing Interests

As an author of this manuscript, I certify that:

1. all forms of support, are acknowledged in the author’s footnote.
2. any commercial or financial involvement within the past year that might present an appearance of a conflict of interest in connection with the submitted article are disclosed in the cover letter.
(Potential conflicts include, but are not limited to, institutional or corporate affiliations, paid consultancies, stock ownership or other equity interests, patent ownership, royalties, funds for travel, and interests in patents, instruments, and technologies.) If the article is accepted for publication, I will consult with the Principal Editor on whether, and to what extent, this information should be included in the published article.
3. I have not signed an agreement with any sponsor of the study reported in this article that has a clause which prevents me from publishing both positive and negative results, from collaborating with other investigators to pool data across sites, or that forbids me from publishing without the approval of the sponsor.

Part C: Copyright Transfer

In order to protect both Author(s) and the LRC as Publisher from the consequences of unauthorized use, and in consideration of mutual covenants, the LRC requests that all authors (U.S. Government employees see section “Work Done in the Public Domain”), sign the appropriate statement below.

Assignment of Copyright for Authors Who Are Not Employees of U.S. Government

The Author(s) undersigned hereby approves submission of this work and all subsequent revisions for publication and transfers, assigns, or otherwise conveys all copyright ownership to the Center for the Study of Language. I (we) warrant that this work represents original material and does not infringe upon the copyright of any third party; that no part of the work has been published or will be submitted for publication elsewhere unless and until it is rejected by the CSL journal Glossa, and that to the best of my (our) knowledge, the work contains no unlawful matter. I (we) agree to indemnify the Center for the Study of Language against any loss or damages arising out of a breach of this agreement. In the event that my (our) submission is not published, copyright ownership shall revert to the Author(s).
